Passion drives photographer Guy Webster – passion for photography, passion for vintage motorcycles, and passion for family and life. His career has taken him around the world and brought him into contact with the greats in pop culture and politics. Whether he is shooting The Beach Boys or Bill Clinton, The Rolling Stones or Igor Stravinsky, Guy is able to capture likenesses that are at once fresh and familiar, to catch an intimate connection with viewer and subject. To accommodate his amazing motorcycle collection, he created Guy Webster Motorcycle Museum in Ojai. His successful career is a reflection of hard work and, perhaps, a few lucky breaks. Underneath it all is a sense of deep spirituality, based on his Buddhist faith. “Be as loving as you can be,” says Guy Webster, “Love comes back to you.” You won’t want to miss this Tuesday Talk interview with a serious artist who is infused with a sense of fun and joy for living.
